March 2020 Volume XVIII Number 6 Editor, Dolores Gall

Tuesday, March 10 Jim Laurino “Oil: Painting a Textured Landscape”

American Impressionist Jim Laurino will present an interactive demonstration, with the audience encouraged to ask questions. He will cover his canvas with his signature heavy application of paint, describing what he is doing as he works. At the conclusion of the demo, the audience will have an understanding of his approach to painting and his painting style.

Jim began painting as a teenager and received instruction from marine painters Carl G. Evers and Christopher Blossom. He went on to study painting, design and color theory at the University of Connecticut. He has spent several summers on Monhegan Island with the Tree Top crew, a plein air group assembled by Frank Bruckmann. Jim constructs frames for all of his paintings, made from reclaimed wood material, fashioning a rustic window for each piece. He shows his work in galleries throughout the Northeast, and his paintings are in numerous private collections.

Recently Mr. Laurino received the Artists Choice Award for his painting, Split-Rock, at the 2019 Parrsboro, Nova Scotia, plein air competition. For more information about the artist visit www.jimlaurino.com.
